hours through consultation of text and reference books in library. Two hours of study in the library equals three classes and continuing same practice <sup>at</sup> on a stretch of 15 working days equals them to have attended 45 lectures, thereby compensating the attendance. The attendance of students in the library is maintained and endorsed by the librarian. The subject specific teacher keeps track of student's attendance and accordingly evaluates the assignment. The initiative has generated positive impact on students as students could be seen visiting different sections in library for consultation of books and preparation of assignment.
